Personal information

I grew up in Davos in a former sanatorium and later hotel, and was confronted with health issues from my early age. I became aware that both biological and psychological factors play a significant role in the development and healing of a disease. I have therefore designed my medical education as mixed somatic-psychiatric specialist training. As developmental questions are often in the focus of childhood, they are also in the focus of my attention.

I am married and father of two wonderful daughters. My wife works as neuropsychologist in the children's hospital Zurich. As a compensation to my intensive practice and teaching activities, I pursue mountain sports, travel with the family. Also I am engaged in the Child Helping Center NAG.

As a family and team person I have always worked in teams. For the practice Kunterbunt we have put together a crew of professionally qualified men and women. Our goal is to provide your child with competent and personal care.
